

Elect G. O. P. Pres't, And Unshackle U. S. Production Powers

Financial Problems Involved Discussed By Thomas
B. McCabe

America's industrial machine, the giant which enabled the U. S. A. to win the First and Second World Wars, has been treated for 20 years as a stepchild by the national government, and the only way to unshackle the American powers of production and give them a green light is to elect a Republican president this fall, Thomas B. McCabe, former head of the Federal Reserve System, told a conference meeting of Bucks County Republicans yesterday at Pennsbury Manor Inn.

The meeting was to discuss the financial problems involved in a whirlwind finish to the Eisenhower campaign, calling for a great number of short television "spots" in which the candidate will interview typical Americans concerning the principal issues of the election.

Host for the occasion was Congressman Karl C. King, Republican nominee for re-election. Presiding was Arthur M. Eastburn, Doylestown attorney, who is chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee of Bucks County.

Mr. Eastburn greeted the gathering as a "segment of Bucks county, including the Republicans who are especially interested in putting the ticket across this year."

Campaign funds, he added, are coming in better this year than in his experience with the finance committee for the past fourteen years. But, he said, the type of campaign now required, including great emphasis on both television and radio, is far more costly than ever before.

"I am glad to say that this year our candidate is putting on a fighting campaign," he said, pointing out that expensive arrangements are imperative to bring the candidate in direct contact with the voters.

Mr. McCabe, who is president of the Scott Paper Company at Chester, said that he was pleased to have been invited to visit what is the fastest growing county in the entire nation. What is happening here, he declared, is reminiscent of the phrase, "America Unlimited."

"This industrial machine of ours," he continued, "is exemplification of the greatest miracle ever witnessed. Without it, we could not have won either of the World Wars, and without it the United Nations could not stay in Korea."

"Miracles have been done in the last two decades, despite the fact that our industrial machine and the men operating it have been looked on as stepchildren by the national government."

"Here is America, owing its great debt to industry."

"Yet we the people have elected two different men to the presidency who have lacked any real appreciation of the might and the power and the good this machine can perform."

"It seems to me that the greatest issue of this campaign is to see if we can get a type of administration that recognizes all segments of our economy — not only labor and the farmer, and the women, but also those who own and operate industries. Each group ought to be given credit for its share in the development of the country."

"It is hard to see how industry has been able to stand up, considering first the taxes, which in some cases eat up as much as 80 per cent of the product."

"News Behind the News" Is Presented To Group Here

John Raleigh, Foreign Correspondent, Addresses
Travel Club, Guests

In a period of less than an hour, last evening, in which he touched on events in many parts of the world, John McCutcheon Raleigh, foreign correspondent and news commentator, presented to Travel Club members and their guests some of the "news behind the news."

"What's News Today" was Mr. Raleigh's subject for his talk in the Travel Club home, followed by a period in which he answered questions from the women and men in the audience.

Introduced by the program chairman, Mrs. David M. Sheerer, Jr., the news analyst first touched on the current situation in Germany, with details on some phases "quashed by the state department". He cited specific cases in regard to young dissidents and how they differ from those following World War I. The difficulty of moulding dissidents into peaceful pursuits was mentioned.

The speaker adding that Germany cannot at the present be accepted as a democracy. At this point he mentioned that the question regarding a third world war is often posed, his opinion being there will be a third war. He expressed his belief that the German people may be sold a "bill of goods" as the new army unit is built around them.

Speaking of Europe as a whole, he left no doubt that "it is riven with nationalism"—"a German is still a German, and a Frenchman is still a Frenchman."

The disgusting behaviour of Goehring at a soiree staged in the Russian embassy while he (Raleigh) was in Germany was recounted. Mr. Raleigh told of how Goehring when about to be served a goosey confection plunged his fist into it, then shoved as much as possible into his mouth, the sweet desert dripping onto his white tunic each time he partook of it. A "spare" tunic carried by his aide solved the problem, change being made in an ante-room.

Another "hot spot"—Iran—was touched on, the speaker referring to Mossadegh's peculiar attack in "expressing strength through weakness". He added "The Bible of Iran today is complete nationalism."

The grim aspects of the Korean War were also included in the talk as the speaker considered the "potentials" and the causes for worry on the part of the common people as well as the leaders.

The qualities of the two candidates for the presidency of the United States were mentioned briefly. Mr. Raleigh saying: "I don't believe there will be any landslide." He stated that he does not see any

Man Killed, Resisting Arrest; 2 Troopers Wounded

Pottstown—A man, tentatively identified as Richard Jensen, 25, was shot to death today by two state policemen as he resisted with gunfire their efforts to arrest him in a home a half mile north of Linfield and seven miles east of Pottstown.

The exchange of gunfire took place in the man's darkened bedroom which the troopers entered. Both policemen were wounded before Jensen was felled by bullets.

State Trooper Alfred B. Kissinger, formerly of Reading, was wounded seriously in the abdomen. State Trooper John J. Flannery, of Norristown, was wounded in the shoulder. Both are from the Jeffersonville barracks.

Justice of the Peace Frank M. Evans, Linfield, said Jensen is believed to have come from San Bernardino, Calif., and recently became a guest at the home of Joseph Thomas, Limerick twp.

He said other residents of the house were Thomas' daughter, Rose Marie, about 20, and her former husband, Forrest Reichard, a truck driver.

Evans said that Miss Thomas, a waitress divorced Reichard about two months ago. Shortly after midnight, Evans said, Miss Thomas telephoned police that Jensen was carrying two loaded 32-calibre guns.

Troopers Kissinger and Flannery brought her to Evan's office where she formally made a complaint. Miss Thomas and the troopers went to the Thomas house where her father directed them to Jensen's bedroom. The troopers awakened Jensen. He immediately began firing. The troopers took cover and returned the fire. Jensen cried out that he would surrender.

Evans said that presumably the troopers then held their fire. But then there was another burst of gunfire and both troopers were hit. Flannery, however, was able to continue firing. Evans troopers.

Jensen was struck three times in the head. The troopers were treated at Memorial Hospital.

Madeline Sweeney Has The Lead In "Happy Birthday"

LANGHORNE, Oct. 18 — When a sweet and passive young woman slips a "pink lady" for the first time in her life she's apt to take another.

The result is a riotous transition from the ordinary into a world of fantasy and wonderland. But Addie Benis (Madeline Sweeney) is still genuine and warm. She's vivacious and daring. She's giddy, ridiculous, and terrific.

Madeline Sweeney heads the cast of Langhorne Players' latest production, "Happy Birthday". The play will be presented at the Players' Barn on November 19, 21 and 22.

"News Behind the News" Is

John Raleigh, Foreign Correspondent, Addresses
Travel Club, Guests

In a period of less than an hour, last evening, in which he touched on events in many parts of the world, John McCutcheon Raleigh, foreign correspondent and news commentator, presented to Travel Club members and their guests some of the "news behind the news."

"What's News Today" was Mr. Raleigh's subject for his talk in the Travel Club home, followed by a period in which he answered questions from the women and men in the audience.

Introduced by the program chairman, Mrs. David M. Sheerer, Jr., the news analyst first touched on the current situation in Germany, with details on some phases "quashed by the state department." He cited specific cases in regard to young dissidents and how they differ from those following World War I. The difficulty of moulding said dissidents into peaceful pursuits was mentioned, the speaker adding that Germany cannot at the present be accepted as a democracy. At this point he mentioned that the question regarding a third world war is often posed, his opinion being there will be a third war. He expressed his belief that the German people may be sold a "bill of goods" as the new army unit is built around them.

Speaking of Europe as a whole, he left no doubt that "it is riven with nationalism"—"a German is still a German, and a Frenchman is still a Frenchman."

The disgusting behaviour of Goehring at a soiree staged in the Russian embassy while he (Raleigh) was in Germany was recounted. Mr. Raleigh told of how Goehring when about to be served a gooey confection plunged his fist into it, then shoved as much as possible into his mouth, the sweet dessert dripping onto his white tunic each time he partook of it. A "spare" tunic carried by his aide solved the problem, change being made in an ante-room.

Another "hot spot"—Iran—was touched on, the speaker referring to Mossadegh's peculiar attack in "expressing strength through weakness." He added "The Bible of Iran today is complete nationalism."

The grim aspects of the Korean War were also included in the talk as the speaker considered the "potentials" and the causes for worry on the part of the common people as well as the leaders.

The qualities of the two candidates for the presidency of the United States were mentioned briefly, Mr. Raleigh saying: "I don't believe there will be any landslide." He stated that he does not see any

LATEST NEWS BULLETINSMan Killed, Resisting Arrest; 2 Troopers Wounded

Pottstown—A man, tentatively identified as Richard Jensen, 25, was shot to death today by two state policemen as he resisted with gunfire their efforts to arrest him in a home a half mile north of Linfield and seven miles east of Pottstown.

The exchange of gunfire took place in the man's darkened bedroom which the troopers entered. Both policemen were wounded before Jensen was felled by bullets.

State Trooper Alfred B. Kissinger, formerly of Reading, was wounded seriously in the abdomen. State Trooper John J. Flannery, of Norris-town, was wounded in the shoulder. Both are from the Jeffersonville barracks.

Justice of the Peace Frank M. Evans, Linfield, said Jensen is believed to have come from San Bernardino, Calif., and recently became a guest at the home of Joseph Thomas, Limerick twp.

He said other residents of the house were Thomas' daughter, Rose Marie, about 20, and her former husband, Forrest Reichard, a truck driver.

Evans said that Miss Thomas, a waitress divorced Reichard about two months ago. Shortly after midnight, Evans said, Miss Thomas telephoned police that Jensen was carrying two loaded .32-calibre guns.

Troopers Kissinger and Flannery brought her to Evan's office where she formally made a complaint. Miss Thomas and the troopers went to the Thomas house where her father directed them to Jensen's bedroom. The troopers awakened Jensen. He immediately began firing. The troopers took cover and returned the fire. Jensen cried out that he would surrender.

Bungling of Democratic Nat'l Administration

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 18 — A 300-balloon barrage was launched by the Bucks County Young Republicans yesterday to demonstrate inflation and bungling of the Democratic national administration. The balloons, inflated with helium gas, were released one-by-one and sailed through the skies carrying a tag with the statement, "How far can this inflation go?"

At Morrisville, where the Republicans launched the balloons from the Calhoun st. bridge, the event was seen by several motorists who were tied up in a traffic jam. The winds carried some of the balloons across the Delaware River to Trenton, N. J., where Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican presidential candidate, was speaking. Others drifted toward Bristol.

Similar balloon launchings took place yesterday afternoon at Quakertown and Doylestown. A $10 dollar prize will be presented to the person finding and retrieving the balloon which has flown the longest distance. The buyer of the far-flying balloon will also receive $10.

The balloons were bought by Republicans of Bucks County, at a cost of one dollar for each.

William Anderson, Morrisville Council president, reported that the event was highly successful, with a good response of balloon buyers. He said that more than 100 persons attended a rally the Young Republicans held in Fallsington Community Hall.

Anderson presided at the rally at which several prominent Republicans spoke. Speakers were Hannah Durham, Lehigh County Republican leader; Congressman Karl C. King, candidate for re-election; State Sen. Edward B. Watson; Assemblyman Marvin V. Kellar and A. Harry Clayton, senior county chairman.

A BRAVE PROFESSOR

Dr. Paul Dolan, associate professor of political science at the University of Delaware, had better prepare to ward off some barbs from the women because of his statement that the "ideal" American voter is a man between the ages of 35 and 60, a high school graduate earning more than $4,000 a year.

The professor has no political axe to grind nor political fences to mend, so perhaps he can speak out on this very touchy subject. But he must have courage if he expects the American woman to swallow his conception of an "ideal" voter.

Presumably by "ideal" he means a voter who listens carefully to the candidates, instead of studying their physiognomies; weighs the issues instead of being swept away by personal charm, and then checks motivations, voting records, policies and party ideology before deciding who gets his vote.

Most candidates probably would not relish a verdict merely by the "ideal" voters. Any and every political campaign, since the first one in history, has been accompanied by a great deal of emotion, showmanship and stunts.

And certainly, as life and politics became more complex, candidates have been brought to the realization that their campaigns require a certain amount of theatricalism.

But in many instances women are more honest in admitting the basis of their votes than men. Many women do not hesitate to say that they like this candidate or that candidate "just because," while many men who can give no better reason, try to concoct all sorts of erudite explanations.

But the professor from the University of Delaware must be aware that he is on quicksand when he dares to characterize the ideal voter as "a man," especially when as a professor of human behavior or history can point to the feminine influence in elections—even before women voted—as something that a candidate discounted at his peril.

A man between the ages of 35 and 60 may be the ideal voter in the opinion of Professor Dolan, but it is a fact that women, from Cleopatra to Judy O'Grady, have not been unimportant in politics.

A BRAVE PROFESSOR

Dr. Paul Dolan, associate professor of political science at the University of Delaware, had better prepare to ward off some barbs from the women because of his statement that the "ideal" American voter is a man between the ages of 35 and 60, a high school graduate earning more than $4,000 a year.

The professor has no political axe to grind nor political fences to mend, so perhaps he can speak out on this very touchy subject.
But he must have courage if he expects the American woman to swallow his conception of an "ideal" voter.

Presumably by "ideal" he means a voter who listens carefully to the candidates, instead of studying their physiognomies; weighs the issues instead of being swept away by personal charm, and then checks motivations, voting records, policies and party ideology before deciding who gets his vote.

Most candidates probably would not relish a verdict merely by the "ideal" voters. Any and every political campaign, since the first one in history, has been accompanied by a great deal of emotion, showmanship and stunts.

And certainly, as life and politics became more complex, candidates have been brought to the realization that their campaigns require a certain amount of theatricalism.

But in many instances women are more honest in admitting the basis of their votes than men.
Many women do not hesitate to say that they like this candidate or that candidate "just because," while many men who can give no better reason, try to concoct all sorts of erudite explanations.

But the professor from the University of Delaware must be aware that he is on quicksand when he dares to characterize the ideal voter as "a man," especially when a professor of human behavior or history can point to the feminine influence in elections — even before women voted — as something that a candidate discounted at his peril.

A man between the ages of 35 and 60 may be the ideal voter in the opinion of Professor Dolan, but it is a fact that women, from Cleopatra to Judy O'Grady, have not been unimportant in politics.

Things Which Pass Knowledge
VI. Time

We know that "The King's business requires haste". There are many offices to perform for Christ now, and not tomorrow. It is a very serious thing to know that God will bring every work into judgment, and that my neglect of service is as bad as doing a poor job, when I could do a better one by applying myself.

The time element of which I would speak is that form God's standpoint. In Luke we read of the seed falling on good ground, and fruit being brought forth WITH PATIENCE. There are some things in God's time schedule we cannot understand, but with faith go on working. There are some things we cannot see, but must hope for. And Paul in Romans reflects, "But if we hope for what we see not, then do we with patience wait for it". Patience is regarded as a great Christian virtue in Colossians, "strengthened with all might, according to His glorious power, unto all patience and longsuffering with joyfulness". Furthermore, the trials of life are according to James the prelude to a manifestation of patience.

One wonders if it will be said of us as of the church at Ephesus in the Book of the Revelation, "I know thy patience". Perhaps we should cultivate this Christian virtue more, bringing God into the hurried scheme of our twentieth century life, to assure us that His plans are wisely drawn and that our work should bear fruit with patience.

Two Plays Prove To Be Very Delightful Vehicles

Levittown Players Highly Commended; Social Period Follows At B. H. S.

LEVITTOWN, Oct. 18 — Not only residents of this community, but many from nearby towns witnessed the plays staged in Bristol high school auditorium last evening by Levittown Players.

High praise was given the casts of "Two Crooks and a Lady" and "Another Way Out" which made such an enjoyable evening for the play-goers.

The cast for "Two Crooks and a Lady" (by Eugene Piliot) included: Miller, the Hawk, Frank DeTolla; Lucille, Jean Myers; Mrs. Simms-Vane, Enid Stern; Miss Jones, "Terry" Ringkamp; Inspector, Holmes McCormick.

The time was "early afternoon" and the setting the library of Mrs. Simms-Vane's home.

"Another Way Out", the second presentation, which is by Lawrence Langner, was staged by the following whose parts are listed: Mrs. Abbey, M. Wilson; Margaret Marshall, Leonora Wolk; Pomeroy Pendelton, Reuben Wolk; Baroness de Meauville, Patricia Chapin; Charles P. K. Fenton, Donald Ringkamp.

Following the play coffee and cake were served in the cafeteria. The players group was formed last July, the members planning to make the unit a permanent one. They hope for frequent plays, musical performances and a children's theatre presentation occasionally.

Later the expectation is to give the performances of the group in the Levittown town hall.

LEVITTOWN, Oct. 18. — For several years Donald P. Bickel commuted to his job in Phila. as sales engineer for the Worthington Machinery Corp., from Wilmington, Del. He's still with the firm, but now he commutes from the opposite direction, from his new home at 28 Little Lane.

Mr. Bickel, his wife, Elizabeth, and Mark, his 2½-month-old son moved here from Wilmington Sept. 19. He's a native of Saginaw, Mich., and Mrs. Bickel was born in Mahanoy City, but they met in Wilmington when they were both employed in that city.

Mr. Bickel was associated with the Wilmington office of the Worthington Co. at the time. Mrs. Bickel was then a physical therapist, at the Delaware Curative Workshop, where she did orthopedic and rehabilitation work. She was trained in Pittsburgh, at the D. T. Watson School of Physical Therapy.

During World War II, Mr. Bickel went to sea with the Navy, and received officers training at Webb Institute of Technology, New York, N. Y.

The Bickels are the only cribbage enthusiasts we have found in Levittown so far. Their living room is decorated with models of old time cars that Mr. Bickel has made in his spare time. Sewing is a hobby as well as a chore with his wife. Their living room will soon house maple colonial furniture.

LEVITTOWN, Oct. 18 — Joseph H. Dougherty is going to set up a photo darkroom in the utility room of his home at 16 Little lane. Although he works for Bristol Engineering Corp., as a draftsman, he's an enthusiastic camera fan, and has studied at the Antonelli School of Photography, Phila.

As a sideline to his regular job, he has done considerable commercial photography, including candid wedding pictures, portraits and high school photos.

Before moving to Levittown Sept.

15, he and his wife, Ruth, and daughter, five-month-old Ellen Ruth, lived in North Phila. Mr. Dougherty worked for the Piasecki Helicopter Corp., in Morton.

Mrs. Dougherty is also a draftsman, or draftsman, but house-keeping is now her fulltime job. She and her husband attended a training course given in Phila. by Philco. Corp. and worked for that firm.

Mr. Dougherty is an Army veteran of World War II. The Dougherty home is being decorated with new furniture. They recently had some drapes made for the living room.

cent of every dollar earned as profits a staggering load that industry cannot long continue to bear; and considering also the regimentation, the delays and the red tape, which are an expense and an annoyance as well as a deterrent from initiative.

"Is it any wonder that we business and professional men should be aroused as never before at the prospect of a change in the national government?"

"The administration is run down. It is vacillating, it has become corrupt; it is tired; it has lost vision.

"Our national government has slipped so far that it no longer can command the services of the country's top men to do the jobs that need doing.

"We have the greatest candidate this year that the Republican party has put forward during my lifetime. He is carrying a message which is gradually getting across to the American people. But there is still quite a fight ahead.

"General Eisenhower will bring something which we have lacked for years — vision, sincerity and character that our children can look up to with pride.

"It is an interesting fact that among the youths who are voting this fall for the first time, the great percentage want Eisenhower. America is looking to him with new hope and new faith.

"We have in Eisenhower a man of destiny, just as much as Washington and Lincoln were men of destiny. I sincerely believe that Fate selected him for this particular mission."

Mr. McCabe gave some of the details of the radio drive planned for the final two weeks of the campaign, and said that political experts had agreed that the battle would be won or lost on the airwaves.

"What this means," he said, "is that we who hope to see General Eisenhower elected must do something more than just sit around and talk politics."

Congressman King, whose arrival at the meeting had been delayed by his participation in the Eisenhower rally at Trenton, and by the immense traffic jam resulting from the many thousands who came there to hear the candidate's address, spoke a brief message of greeting to the group.

He, too, emphasized the gigantic increase which has taken place in the job of getting a candidate's appeal across to the people, now that television has become a network blanketing the country and reaching, on occasion, more than half the total population in a single face-to-face talk.
